

Commentary

Aim and scope of medicine and surgery

Yuan Ping*

Department of Pharmaceutical Sciences, Zhejiang University, Hangzhou, China.

Accepted 20 December, 2021

DESCRIPTION

Medicine and Surgery is a peer-reviewed publication, which aims to presenting different variety of medical, clinical, and surgical specialties. This journal is one of the best open access journals. The journal goal is to improve communication between scientists and health-care professionals in terms of improving medical practise and support development in all fields. Which is developed for both practitioners and researchers, with the aim of publishing the most detailed and reliable source of information on new discoveries and developments in the form of original articles, review articles, case reports, short communications, and other layouts in the sector and enable researchers around the world with unlimited online access without any restrictions or subscriptions. The primary objective and scope are to publish articles that shows the real status of science and medicine by providing surgeons, trainees, and researchers with original science articles as well as a complete critical review of the medical research. To provide the people with regarding medical and surgical information. To make important new treatments and surgery easily available to therapy by providing well-written, and highly organised content in an interesting, and helpful to patient care style.

Medicine aims to promote and maintain health and wellbeing. It is the art and science of caring for a patient, managing the evaluating, prognosis, prevention, treatment, palliation of their injury or disease, and promoting their health. Medicines are made for the treatment of a particular disease, It is a general term that refers to a variety of healthcare methods that have developed to protect and restore health through illness prevention and treatment. Biomedical sciences, biomedical research, genetics, and medical technology are used in modern medicine to diagnose, treat, and prevent injury, usually by medicines or surgery. The main branches of medicine are namely basic science of medicine is a study of Biomedical research. Medical specialties means it a branch of medical practise of medicine, that focuses on a certain patient population, condition, skill set. Interdisciplinary fields are involved in medical specialities are combined to perform a specific function. It involves a more systemic, pharmaceutical approach to treatment.

Surgery is the word used to describe the process of doing surgery, operation and surgical procedure. It is a medical or dental practice in which a person is treated to operative manual and technical systems in order to investigate or treat a pathological condition such as a disease, to promote in the improvement of body functions, features, or the treatment of affected areas. By reducing child mortality, improving mother health, and reducing the risk of a variety of health issues. Types of surgery are namely Elective surgery, Exploratory surgery, Reconstructive surgery and Laser surgery etc.

Medicine and Surgery that is concerned with the treatment of injuries, diseases, and other disorders. It covers disease diagnosis, treatment, and prevention, as well as medical research and a range of other issues. Allopathic medicine is also a term used to describe conventional modern medicine. It includes the use of medicine or surgery and often, supported by counseling and lifestyle measures.

*Corresponding author. Yuan Ping, E-mail: yuanpeng@gmail.com.